

INDUSTRY CHALLENGES AND QUESTIONS FOR REGULATORY AUTHORITIES

Bernadette Keane, Bluebird Bio
bernadette.keane@yahoo.com

Key Words: Regulation, cell therapies, translation

Cell therapies are substantially more complex than small molecule or biological approaches to medicine. This complexity poses challenges for both academic groups and companies developing cell therapies, as well as for regulators seeking to oversee this growing area of medicine. In this interactive session we will discuss some of the common challenges and lessons learned along the way and explore how collaborations between industry and the regulators can help lead to successful translation and commercialization of cell therapies.